I contributed to `index.html` and developed `styles.css`. Specifically, I developed the header, footer, body (filler text for now) and navigation functionality by the header. You are able to sign up by clicking the sign up button.

I worked on the javascript part of `sign_up.html` as well as `server.js`, `sign_up.js`, and `shopper_info.json`. Most of my part was spent doing tons of research in order to learn how in the world to get the different files to communicate with each other, as well as sending info into `shopper_info.json` without losing what was there before. It is rough around the edges for sure but it worked once on my machine, so I will leave it at that for now and find a more permanent solution in the coming weeks so everyone can replicate without the need for external downloads.

I worked on the framework of the `sign_up.html` page. I linked together all of the `.html` pages, ensuring that there is seamless navigation between the pages. I also created the `about_us.html`, `contact.html`, and `products.html` files (currently filled with filler).

Worked on ensuring the text boxes worked properly with javascript code.
